ANALYTICAL DECISION MAKING

Analytical Decision Making is based on a set of relationships laid out, generally arbitrarily, from which new information can be deduced. This involves two steps-first of analysis and second of reasoning.

Analytical decision making deals with questions in which you have to decide upon the course of action taken upon a candidate who has applied for a post or membership to an institution keeping in mind the essential requisites and the data given for the candidate. We can classify such questions into a few major categories.

Category I

In this type a vacancy is being declared. The necessary qualifications required by the recruiting agencies are given with certain exceptions. The qualifications and the merits of the candidates are mentioned. The decision about each candidate has to be made from amongst the five choices given, which state the courses of action to be taken as per the candidate's potential.

Category II

Here the eligibility conditions for joining a course or availing certain benefits etc are given as against the vacancies mentioned in the former category. The qualifications of the candidates are also mentioned. The decision about each candidate is to be made from amongst the five answer choices given.

PRACTICE TEST

7	✓	✓	✓	✓

For (iii), the candidate should obtain C, D or E ratings. For (iv), the candidate should obtain D, E, F or G ratings.

(i) + (ii) + (iii) + (iv) = option (3)

(a) + (ii) + (iii) + (iv) = option (4)

(i) + (b) + (iii) + (iv) = option (5)

(a) + (b) + (iii) + (iv) = option (2)

Anything not fulfilling = option (2)

Anything missing = option (1)

1.2; He is neither fulfilling criteria (ii) nor (b). For fulfilling (b), he should obtain either D or E ratings for quality of work.

2. 1; Nothing given about her ratings in approach of work and B. Com. marks.

3. 1; We don't know when he joined.

15. 5; Captaining a state usually means playing at national level. Three fifties clearly indicates that he has played at least thrice.

16.1; Clearly, he is satisfying criteria (ii). "State level player" does not mean he has played at national level representing his state. Hence he is not satisfying criteria (iv).

17.4 18.4

19.2; 22 stumping and 20 catches, i.e. 42 wickets clearly indicates that he has played at least 3 matches at national level. Hence he fulfils criteria (iv). Winning a match doesn't mean winning a tournament. Hence (i) is not satisfied by him.

20. 4; 'His college has always won the match under his captaincy during the last 4 years' clearly means that his college team has won a tournament under his captaincy.
